

Green Shield B+ Energy

The perfect balance and harmony between the physical body, the psychic mind and the consciousness by combining MaGravs Technology and colors.

We have learned in the past, how the fields within our body can be unbalanced for emotional and environmental reasons, thus opening the way to the onset of disease or imbalance in energy psychophysical. Logically speaking, therefore, if we could keep these fields in balance, we would have the real possibility of greatly reducing our levels of stress and keep the body in a state of general lasting health.

The purpose of the "Be positive" or simply (B+) Sweatshirt or T-shirt, is precisely the re-balancing of psycho-physical energy through which particular information is released by acting on the harmony and overall well-being able to rebalance the mind, soul and body of the person who wears them.

The B+ Sweatshirts by Green Shield, are made with a specific vibratory wave through dried Zinc and Co2 Gans mixed in different colors, also energy waves are in turn combined with fabrics and shapes. The transmission of the message on the sweatshirts or t-shirts B+, takes place through a technique of nano-energy linked to subtle energies, which infuses the color in the desired information.

The wearer of Green Shield's B+ garments will experience the re-balance and/or strengthen, on several levels, moods, health, perceptions, environments and other facets of his or her life or world.

How does energy behave?

Informing an object requires an alliance with energy that is the result of years of experience: it also requires total respect for life and the free will of all, a great deal of ethics, good faith and honesty. Only in the presence of these parameters does energy accept to be conveyed; energy that does not perceive these characteristics does not maintain its alliance for long.

The importance of colors in our lives.

Colours are very important and often underestimated elements in our lives. The use of colours as a therapeutic method was already used by many ancient cultures, in particular India, China and Egypt.

For the Indians, the colors act on the 7 chakras (centers of physical, spiritual and psychic energy) and each chakra corresponds to a color. According to Chinese medicine, each organ has its own colour, for example, the kidneys are orange, the lungs white etc.. The Egyptians, on the other hand, used colour in reality with their divinities and with the phenomena of nature; yellow for summer, midday, red for autumn and sunset, blue for morning and spring.

Our body absorbs colors.

According to the principles of color therapy our body can absorb colors through food (chromodiet), through clothing, in fact the color is "worn" through the choice of clothing or direct application on the body by special sensations, due to massages with colored pigments, with special devices used in color therapy, in this case, the colour is absorbed by the body through the epidermal route with the use of coloured lamps and coloured filters, it is also possible to imagine and mentally evoke the colour through relaxation and breathing exercises and, finally, the colours can also be absorbed through the colour of the walls of the house and office. We live constantly immersed in colors and we do not realize the influence that colors have on our emotional states and actions. It is advisable to make a careful choice for the colours that surround us, such as at home, for example. For this reason we have chosen to combine MaGravs technology with chromotherapy through the technique of tie & dye and using the colors of well-being.

Characteristics of the colours used

“ The spinal column, on the thin plane, you have real energy centers, related to everything that is in you and everything that is outside you. These centers develop as you progress inwardly, but in correspondence with the outer worlds. They are much more than the seven you know at the moment, and they are one of the keys to your growth. Each central, as you know, is related to endocrine glands that transmit information to your organs. The proper functioning of these communication routes is therefore very important. These doors, moreover, are in contact with other worlds, because they are like filters of access to other dimensions of the cosmos. ”

Each item of the B+ and SoftMAG lines has been tested by special instruments that attest their energy charge and with this we have identified more than 144,000 different vibrations. To test these energy charges you can use the radioesthesia and the verification of the Bovis units.
